Introduction 15

Explains how all worship is a response in one way or another to the basic story of what God has done and who God is.

Worship Is Too Big for Us

1 God, the Creator 21

God, the Creator, gives us reason to respond to Him in a variety of ways. Both the Old and New Testaments offer insight into appropriate worship practices, which include words, actions, and attitudes.

The Drama of Redemption

2 God, the Redeemer 55

Israel's worship was centered on the Exodus event, which was remembered, recited, and reenacted in corporate gatherings. In the New Testament the supreme redemptive event, the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ, becomes the center of worship action.

A Wedding

3 God, the Covenant-Maker 83

Covenant making and keeping is at the heart of worship in the Bible. Understanding the process of covenant in the Old Testament helps us to translate our New Testament-centered worship into covenantal language and actions.

A Simple Plan

4 God, the Incarnate 105

When God became man and walked this earth, worship changed forever. This chapter deals with Jesus' reception of worship, His life as a worshiper, and His teachings on worship. It also examines the gatherings of the early church.

Forgiveness

- 5 God, the Savior 133
God's salvation plan brought the world from darkness to light. Worship is impacted by the recognition of sin and death, as Christians celebrate being freed by the once-and-for-all sacrifice of Jesus.

Baffled by Mystery

- 6 God, the Master 153
Biblical worship is lifestyle worship. The Holy Spirit enables living a life worthy of God and empowers vital corporate gatherings.
